Recipe Management: Previewing Recipes

Previous |

Recipe Browser Preview

You can preview how the recipe will look to your end users in Internet Explorer from the recipe editor. Simply click on the "Preview" button. The recipe will open up in a browser window. This will appear exactly as the end user will see it. You will also be able to click on any media files that have been added to the recipe. You can click the recipe home icon to get back to the recipe from the media files. The history functionality will not work from this view, nor will returning to the recipe group home using the "Home" icon.

If you are not able to preview your recipe, or get an error message from Internet Explorer, you may not have the correct recipe portal address configured in the recipe options. To configure the correct portal address, go to Tools> Options. In the server URL dialog box, enter the correct portal address. This will be a valid web address to your recipe system portal. An example would be:

`http://recipesserver/recipe`
