Creating a Recipe System: Recipe Categories and Groups

Recipe Categories and Groups

Recipe Categories

Recipe categories are added to systems to organize groups of recipes. The recipe web portal does not actually show recipes by the category level, they are shown at the group level. The amount of categories that are used is at the preference of the recipe administrator. In the example below, we have three categories: Production Recipes, Seasonal Recipes, and Test Recipes.

Recipe Groups

Recipe groups are comprised of recipes. Recipes can belong to multiple recipe groups. Groups should be categorized in such a way that portal users would expect to find particular recipes. For instance, in the screen shot, the appetizer group would contain all of the appetizer recipes. When a portal user navigates to a recipe, they do so by first clicking on the group that it is in. You can have up to 60 recipes per group.
